CENTRAL RECORD.

An Independent, Local Newspaper. — ISSUED WEEKLY.

LOUIS LANDMAN, Editor and Publisher.

Lancaster, Ky., July 11, 1901.

The Kentucky editors are saving up their nickels and dimes to take the trip out West this summer. The idea prevalent that they can go on these jaunts without script or purse is erroneous. It costs money, and if subscribers don't come up to the scratch and pay for the paper, Mr. Editor stays at home. The saying that editors have a hard time to keep soul and body together is quite stale, but it is true, just the same. No class of men do more favors than do country newspaper publishers. They receive little pay, and seldom any thanks for the ten thousand kindnesses they do for the people. When they do slip off for a little rest, some gourdheads are mean enough to say they are dead-beating their way. The newspaper man's time to laugh will come, however, when he stands inside the pearly gates and watches St. Peter turn down the fellows who have lorded it over him back on the earth.

Ed WALTON is writing some spicy editorials for his Interior Journal, and if he keeps improving at the rate he is now going, he will soon equal his big brother. Ed said when he took the Journal that the hardest task he would encounter was trying to fill the editorial column, and showed he was a little weak-kneed on tackling the job, but his work has proven that he is equal to the task in every way. W. P. will have to hump if he stays far in the lead of his hustling little brother.

It is said that twenty-five per cent. of the young men who have applied for admission to West Point have been unable to meet the physical qualifications. Much of this has been caused by cigarettes, so the report goes. The little coffin nails cause as much, if not more trouble than whisky, yet a determined fight has never been waged against them.

WHENEVER the Lexington papers run out of something to fill up on they dig out a lengthy list of "new" telephone subscribers and fill in three or four columns with it. The same names appear in each "new list," tho' the headlines are sometimes changed. A little fresh boiler plate would doubtless be enjoyed more by the subscribers.

The citizens of Madison county expect that a compromise will be reached regarding the disposition of the grounds and buildings in Richmond which formerly belonged to Central University. Half loaf is better than no bread, and we are glad Richmond is going to get this much, though wish she could secure the whole cake shop.

THE Lincoln county jailer boasts of having three of the best looking prisoners in the state. They show up all right, though we know any number of men who would look much handsomer behind the bars, but the trouble is in getting them placed there.

ANOTHER speculator at Louisville showed up $42,000 short. Its seems old thing, stock gambling. It seems that people will never learn that money obtained other than by the sweat of the brow will not stay with a man.

THE Danville Advocate passed its thirty-sixth mile stone last week. The Advocate is one of the cleanest and most conservative papers in Kentucky, and we congratulate our thriving neighbor upon its great success.

AS ONLY sixteen hundred persons were injured throughout the country in Fourth of July accidents this year it appears that patriotism is dying out.

Does It Pay to Buy Cheap.

A cheap remedy for coughs and colds is all right, but you want something that will relieve and cure the more severe and dangerous results of throat and lung troubles. What shall you do? Go to a warmer and more regular climate? Yes, if possible; if not possible for you, then in either case take the only remedy that has been introduced in all civilized countries with success in severe throat and lung troubles, "Boschee's German Syrup." It not only heals and stimulates the tissues to destroy the germ disease, but allays inflammation, causes easy expectoration, gives a good night's rest, and cures the patient. Try one bottle. Recommended many years by all druggists in the world. Get Green's Prize Almanac at Storms Drug store.

Doctors often disagree, but they don't disagree half as much as their medicines do.

A Severe Test.

Luke Dodley, better known as old "Hot in the Collar," is a half-breed Pawnee, who vegetates on Jawbone gulch over in Lincoln county. He came here Saturday to buy a mule and a plow to fasten to an old plowline he has at home, it being his fixed purpose, he said, to stir up the clouds from one end of his reservation to the other. Dodley would attract notice even in a marching column of Louisville business men. The super-imposed turret of his anatomy, known as his head, consists mostly of his nose with a sort of brain-pan annex. If by any mischance he were to lose his nose he would be practically without a head. Any man who lugs around a carmine-nosed nasal monstrosity like Dodley's, ought to be able, and doubtless is able to scent fire-water a mile to windward. In fact it is said of old Hot in the Collar, that when it comes to a guzzling contest, he can put any two men in the province under the table. At any rate he is always willing to try. While here he was over at the Garrard Hotel a few minutes. In a general conversation there the question arose as to what was the most difficult thing for a human being to do, when some one familiar with almanac jokes said he believed it would be a right hard thing for a fellow to carry an armful of live eels up a steep hill without letting slip an eel. Old Hot in the Collar said that was nothing. He declared that to his mind, the most difficult performance for mortal man to achieve would be to hold a sup of liquor in his mouth a minute without letting it slip down his throat. The remark caused some excitement. Every man in the crowd wanted to see for himself right then and there, if the thing could be done, but the difficulty of obtaining the testing fluid in a dry town was so great that the matter was temporarily abandoned. However, it will be tested repeatedly on a large scale later on at the milk-slide proving grounds at Indian Head, on the Chute.

KENTUCKY PRESS ASSOCIATION.

The Pencil Pushers to Shake off Their Shackles, Enjoy a Rest And See The Country.

The press boys are looking forward with much pleasure to their outing and trip this summer. Bob Morningstar, the clever and efficient secretary, has put in much hard work on arranging the trip, and this week is going over the proposed route making all arrangements that there may not be the slightest hitch or delay from start to finish. The association will be called to order at Madisonville, Ky., Friday, August 2, at 10 o'clock a. m. The entire day will be taken up in attending to matters of great interest to the craft in Kentucky. At night, the people of the hospitable little city will entertain the party, after which they take sleepers and begin the long journey through the West. Special Pullman sleepers have been engaged and the party will make them "home" during the entire trip. Following is the itinerary.

"I am indebted to One Minute Cough Cure for my present good health and my life. I was treated in vain by doctors for lung trouble following a gripple. I took One Minute Cough Cure and recovered my health." Mr. E. H. Wise, Madison, Ga. F. P. Frisbie.

About two-thirds of a doctor's bill is for his trouble in guessing at your complaint.

THE HUSTLING WEST.

PEABODY, Kan., June 29, 1901. Dear Louis:—Referring to the figures on the printed address upon the wrapper enclosing my RECORD, I discovered that I am liable soon to fall in to the hands of Bob Henry, or some merciless harrasser of delinquents, so I hasten to hand you herewith a couple of "shads," which will entitle me to a little higher notch on the list. And now before relinquishing my pen I would like, through your good paper, to make a few plain statements concerning Peabody and its surroundings for the relief and satisfaction of my numerous and dearly beloved Kentucky friends; some of whom seem to have the impression that I have buried myself in the wilderness of the wild and woolly west—that I am scarcely within the bounds of civilization, and that my neighbors are chiefly the wily red man, the shaggy buffalo and howling coyote; and they honestly mourn that so good a man should thus "waste his sweetness on the desert air."

Peabody is a beautiful and thriving little city of some 1,500 inhabitants, located in the southern part of Monroe county, about 13 miles, as the crow flies, southwest of Marion, the county seat, and 10 miles west of Florence. The first house was built in the place in the winter of 1870, the material for which was hauled by wagon from Emporia, a distance of 55 miles.

The business portion of the town is neatly and substantially built, mostly of stone and brick; nearly all the buildings being two stories, twenty-five feet front and running back 100 feet. The streets are all wide and nicely graded, and the long rows of shade trees that grace the thoroughfares on either side, add materially to the beauty of the landscape as well as to the comfort of those who pass to and fro beneath their friendly boughs. The town is noted for its delightful homes, its cozy cottages, its charming bluegrass lawns, its lovely flowers and shrubbery, and its magnificent shade and ornamental trees. A splendid system of water-works supplies the city with an abundance of pure water; and Doyle Creek, an ever-flowing crystal stream meanders through its southern suburbs and furnishes the power to turn a mill some two miles below.

Two great trunk lines of railway, the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe and the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific, cross here, placing the city within easy touch with the outside world on the north, east and west. Lying within the border of the great wheat growing belt, and with her largest roller flouring mills and three elevators, having ample facilities for handling cereals, she has justly gained some notoriety as a grain market. And as thousands of steers are annually fed within a radius of a few miles of this place and shipped from here, fat and sleek, over these great railways for the Kansas City, Chicago and export markets, she is known far and near as quite a cattle center.

Every branch of business is well represented here by wide-awake, enterprising and courteous dealers, who carry extensive stocks, embracing every variety of merchandise, and purchasers find no difficulty in obtaining what they want in any line. The six church edifices here betoken the standing of the residents of the community, and the splendid school building with their environments and appointments, are mute evidences of an intelligent and cultivated citizenry. No better public schools are to be found than exist right here in Peabody.

An institution of which the people are justly proud, is the public library, a present from Mr. T. H. Peabody, of the A. T. & S. F. Railway company, for whom the town was named. He erected the building and stocked it with several hundred choice volumes by standard authors and a goodly number of the popular magazines and current periodicals. This valuable library is the property of the township and there are annually added, by taxation, new supplies of books and other reading matter to the thousands of volumes that now crowd the ample shelves.

The Odd Fellows, Masons, Woodman, A. O. U. W., and a number of other fraternal societies have well established lodges here, and add their influence to the many other advantages of the city. The Masons have recently erected an elegant and well appointed opera house, with a spacious lodge room and banquet hall above, which is not only a convenience and satisfaction to the fraternity, but is an ornament to the city and a delight to the community as well.

Such is a brief mention of only a few of the attractions of one of the best towns in one of the best States in the Union. Kansas is all right, and is daily proving herself to be one of the best places to live in to be found in the world. I have by no means gone back on dear old Kentucky, but have learned to love the goodly land of my adoption nearly as well. We had an immense crop of everything last year, and the indications now are that wheat and corn will be nearly as good this year. Sincerely yours, R. L. COCHRAN.

are wanting to know what the buyers are going to pay for wheat. We have several buyers here but they are not making any bids.

Our bank is completed and looks as neat as a pretty girl in a party dress. Cashier W. G. Kemper says business is increasing every day and it will be a paying institution.

GILES.

Madam Rumor reports a wedding on the 16th inst.

Thos. House, our postmaster, has had a severe attack of chills.

Messrs. Sebastian, Lige Hurt and W. E. Ray, are having splendid luck fishing.

Mrs. Rosie Naide, our dress-maker, has been on the sick list, but is some better at this writing.

Miss Lucy House contemplates visiting her sisters, Mesdames M. H. Gentry and E. H. White, of Fayette county, in the near future.

Quite a large party of young folk had a fish dinner on the river last Wednesday week. All report an enjoyable time and plenty to eat. They were all somewhat disappointed, as they intended to go up to Valley View on the steamer, Falls City. It failed to come in time.

You can never cure dyspepsia by dieting. What your body needs is plenty of good food properly digested. Then if your stomach will not digest it, Kodol Dyspepsia Cure will. It contains all of the natural digestants hence must digest every class of food and so prepare it that nature can use it in nourishing the body and replacing the wasted tissues, thus giving life, health, strength, ambition, pure blood and good healthy appetite. F. P. Frisbie.

LOCUST GROVE!

Miss Edna Scott began teaching here last Monday.

Boys, there are girls in this section who can't walk, but they delight in having the boys come once a week.

Candidates were as thick last week hereabouts as fiddlers were in days gone, some of them hoe corn, others to chores, but the people continue to "Saw wood and say nothing," and will do so until the sugar bowl is opened.

Mrs. Margaret and J. F. Stone, Misses Edith and Ovella Nontgomery, visited relatives in Tyro neighborhood last week, and had a most pleasant time.

Henry Traylor, than whom no more clever, or large-hearted man can be found this side the pearly gates of the new Jerusalem, is always ready to lend a helping hand to any one who needs help. Some times when a train load of poverty stricken magnates from the metropolis of the State comes to while away a few hours in Lancaster, he contributes to the whims (not needs) to the tune of some of the best whisky on earth. Ye editors know, hence the puff in last weeks issue of THE RECORD.

STONE.

Miss Viola Folger is very ill at this writing.

Mr. Jesse Lemay spent Saturday and Sunday with friends at High Bridge.

C. L. Sanders lost a number of hogs with the dread disease, cholera, the last few days.

Rev. Meldrum delivered a very interesting discourse to a very large and attentive audience last Sunday at Scotts Fork.

Miss Nora Vandersall returned to her home in Anderson last week, to the regret of some young men in this locality and in others.

Miss Jessie Preston boarded the Falls City after several weeks visit with relatives here, Miss Preston made many friends while here.

The fishing party given at Sugar Creek landing last Saturday was greatly enjoyed by all present and a nicer behaved crowd was never seen by any one.

Don't forget our Sunday School at Scotts Fork each Sunday at half past nine a. m., and also to meet and practice singing at 4 p. m., each Sunday.

Miss Louise Kauffman, of Lancaster, accepted the fall school at Scotts Fork, and opened Monday morning with a very good attendance. We wish Miss Kauffman much success with her school.

A number of young folks from here together with a number from Mt. Hebron, drove over to Camp Nelson last Saturday and spent the day very pleasantly, an elegant luncheon was served and all who were present reported a delightful time and expressed their desire to take another such trip.

WALLACETON.

Born to the wife of Mack Byrd, a fine boy.

Miss Dora McWhorter, of Waco, has been employed to teach the Wallacetown school and will begin on the 15th inst.

Quite a number from here are expecting to attend the quarterly meeting at Walnut next Saturday and Sunday.

The grape crop which is unusually large and, until recently, promised to be of extra quality, is now rotting very badly.

Those who failed to hear Rev. Dodwell, of Berea, preach here on the 30th ult. will be glad to know that they will have another opportunity on next Sunday.

The Sunday school at the M. E. church here has just received as a gift from the Publishers, three dozen copies of the Epworth Hymnal, No. 1, for which we are, of course, grateful.

The recent rains have done quite a good deal of plowing for some of our farmers as well as damage to the clover hay. Oats are excellent and corn at present looks very promising.

Mr. Dan Moore, of Oklahama, who is spending the summer with friends in Kentucky, showed us an English shilling the other day that was made in 1817, during the reign of King George, the Third.

While standing on a box and nailing on ceiling last Friday, J. A. Baker received a heavy fall, as a result of the box tilting with him. No bones were broken but he has been suffering internal pain continuously ever since, and can hardly walk about the house.

R. G. Mitchell has returned from the Philippines after an absence of exactly two years. "Dick" reports continuous good health during his absence and a good time, and says the two years were worth more to him than two years in Harvard, Yale or any other college would have been.

We saw his "Discharge" which said: "Service, Honest and Faithful; Character, Excellent."
